

Clayton
DOB: March 2001

Clayton is a caring and generous teen who wants to be adopted! He is smart and very curious to learn how things work. Clayton enjoys tinkering around with household objects, taking them apart just to rebuild them. Other activities you may find Clayton doing on his free time include building with Legos, playing video games or reading Harry Potter.

As a ninth grader, Clayton has recently joined his high school JROTC. He enjoys school and likes every subject except for History. He benefits from an Individualized Education Plan (IEP) and individual therapy which will need to continue after being placed in his adoptive home.

Clayton is looking for a two-parent family where he can be only child; however, all family types will be considered. Clayton would benefit from a committed family that will provide a consistent and structured environment.

For more information about Clayton or the adoption process, please email
tsomers@dcfs.nv.gov